CAPTURED THE CROWD

The Burglars Are Behind the Bars.

THREE MEN ARE UNDER ARREST

The Jimmy With Which the Work Was Done Is in the Hands of the Police, Although Orville McKinnon Tried to Throw It Away—Bound Over to Court.

The men who robbed right and left on Sunday morning may now be behind the walls of city hall, and a smile of satisfaction covers the face of the authorities, while the prospects seem bright for a few additions to that populous community on the banks of the Scioto.

The first clue which came into the possession of the police was the discovery that Williams' cooper shop had been entered a few weeks ago, and the only article stolen was a tool used by men of that trade. The mere fact that a chisel was the only article missing put Chief Gill on guard, and the police were watching for burglaries. A number have occurred within the past few weeks, but the perpetrators were careful, and they were not caught in the act neither could sufficient evidence be obtained to arrest anyone of several persons which Chief Gill had in mind. After the burglaries of the other night the chain of evidence became so strong that preparations were made for the capture of the gang, as there was little doubt of their identity. Officers Wyman and Supplee arrested Thomas Cartwright at early hour on Sunday morning when he was drunk, it was thought, with the whisky taken a few hours before from the saloon of Hague & Webber. This charge was not made against him Sunday morning, and he was released after giving an order for his fine. It was seen that he returned to work yesterday morning, and knowing him to be safe, the others were sought. When all was ready Chief Gill went to Mountford's pottery, and informed Cartwright that he was wanted. No sooner was he safe within the bastille than the chief walked to the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles plant, and secured Bert Welsh. This made two of the badly wanted three, and a close watch was kept for the other man. His name is Orville McKinnon and he was finally seen by Patrolman Meanor on Market street, and immediately arrested. He seemed very much disturbed at the appearance of the officer, but walked along without resistance until the Brunt property was reached. There he hesitated and attempted to throw something on the lawn, but the officer brought him to his senses, and the walk toward the jail was continued. When the prisoner was in the building he asked to be taken to the lavatory, and was permitted to enter. After he was locked in a cell, the lavatory was examined, and the tool taken from the cooper shop two weeks ago was found. This seemed a most important circumstance, and McKinnon was left to himself, while the police smiled at the successful result of their work.

Before McKinnon was brought in the other two had been arraigned, and were bound to court in the sum of $500 each. Not being in condition to give bail, the men were sent back to jail, where they will remain until they can be taken to New Lisbon for trial. Cartwright is a well known character about the city, and Welsh is the son of George Welsh a respectable resident of Seventh street. McKinnon is perhaps the best known of the lot, having been a member of the military company for some time. When he was searched it was found that on his person was $1.06 in small change. It was made up of 15 five cent pieces, two dimes and six pennies. This corresponds with the money taken from the Adams express company, and will be used against the prisoner.

Past history shows that burglaries are invariably committed by gangs of young men and boys, and Chief Gill and his force have been eminently successful in capturing the culprits with sufficient evidence to convict. This last catch but adds another proof to the oft repeated assertion that no gang can live and operate in this city without falling into the hands of the authorities.

Several attempts to burglarize were made yesterday, but not reported to the police. Among these was an unsuccessful attempt to enter the Laughlin pottery office. Here the thieves used plenty of force and did not hesitate to splinter the door sill, leaving about the plainest evidence of their visit found in any of the 10 or 15 places. They had used a jimmy in this trial as in most of the others.

Chief Gill was around gathering more evidence this morning, and succeeded in finding it in abundance at the home of young McKinnon. There the chief secured a quantity of plug tobacco, which, it is believed, was taken from one of the places robbed Sunday morning.

Chip Gamble, Alfred Reeder, Bud Brookes and Will Parrish are still in jail. The friends of the first two men mentioned are endeavoring to raise enough shekels to satisfy the execution and secure their release.

MUST PAY MORE.

The Billingsley Damage Case Claims Committee Meeting.

Claims committee met last night, with Messrs. Swindell and Williams present. Mr. Owen was absent. Among the most important business indirectly connected with the claims committee was a letter from Hon. R. W. Taylor in reference to the case of J. E. Billingsley against this city for damages. This suit was the result of a runaway in the West End, and at one time an offer was made to settle it for $250. The letter was presented by Solicitor Clark, and after a brief discussion left for the consideration of council tonight. The letter was as follows:

A. H. Clark, Esq.: Before you come up to New Lisbon the next time, I wish you would discuss the matter of the claim of J. E. Billingsley against the city of East Liverpool for damages growing out of the accident happening on the street leading to Jethro a year ago last summer. In the present situation it would be useless to talk of settling at the figure proposed before Mrs. Billingsley's death. At the same time I can say that Mr. Billingsley is willing to settle at a very reasonable figure, and if the council acts promptly, with a reasonable, though substantial, advance upon the figure originally proposed, I will advise a settlement. I desire, however, that the matter be acted upon promptly. We can await payment any reasonable length of time. Yours truly, R. W. TAYLOR.

Many bills were left until the next session, the majority of them being from the board of health, for the reason that sanitary funds are scarce. The bill of S. F. Hayward & Co., Pittsburg, for $25 for a patent cats cleaner for the fire department was also tabled. The following were accepted:

Harry Yates, $27.78; T. S. McCready, $10.55; John A. George, $103.15; Crook & McGraw, $18.70; T. S. McCready, $2.20; Union Plating mill, $48.03; Arthur Burrows, $1.20; Adams Bros., $4.07; News Review company, $6.25; Alex. Coleman, $9; Frank Welch, $15.11; News Review company, $3.90; Charles Gill, $105.78; Walter Supplee, $49; S. H. Badgley, $49; Wm. Jennings, Harry Meener, $44; John W. Wyman, $44; E. M. Welch, $3.50; Charles Gill, $24.50; H. C. Morley, $50; James McCullough, $50; Joshua Curfman, $50; J. W. Finley, $33.75; Thomas Bryan, $50; Alex. Bryan, $30; Charles Stevens, $7.12; Richard Nagle, $33.75; Frank Stevenson, $21; Byron Peterson, $3.75; John Hague, $1.50; William Welch, $50; W. E. Cooper, $31.80; John Ryan, $7.50; A. Watson, $2.10; John Ryan, $3; The Kinsey Plumbing company, $8.25; J. T. King, $50; Kinsey Plumbing company, $2.29; Robert Hall, $90; M. B. Adam, $100; M. B. and G. M. Adam, $3.06; Robert Clarke & Co., $3.50; J. N. Hanley, $51.25; Frank Swaney, $41.25; Knowles, Taylor & Anderson, $57.33; Bishop McVey, $2.50.

No Combine as Yet.

The Toronto Tribune after laughing at a local paper for expressing what it does not know about the combine of sewer pipe manufacturers give the facts as follows: "About a year ago, the combine was fully organized, officers elected, a charter secured, and headquarters to be established at Steubenville, and for reasons best known to themselves, the effort failed. Now, the manufacturers are again trying to organize, still retaining the old charter, old officers, etc., until the combine is fully effected, which it is thought will be this week. After the organization, new officers will be elected, and everything put in ship shape order."

Frank Mahoney Released.

Frank Mahoney, the Salem man charged with poisoning his wife, was released from jail yesterday, and returned to Cuyahoga Falls where he was employed before the arrest was made. Before leaving Salem Mahoney caused the publication of a card in which he declared that he was glad his innocence had been established, and thanked the people of the town for the feeling they had manifested toward him.

TREASURER CAMERON

States His Position on Some Things.

HE ALSO QUOTES THE LAW

Relating to the Collection of Certain Taxes—What Will Come to Liverpool by One Move—Who is Responsible For an Item On the Duplicate.

Treasurer Cameron writes the News Review of a recent publication in this paper regarding the collection of street and sewer taxes. He says:

The new rule alluded to in your article is not a new rule in any sense, but simply the administering of the law—viz, section 1093 revised statutes: "When a person desires to pay only a portion of any tax charged on real estate, otherwise than in installments, as aforesaid, such person shall pay a like proportion of all the taxes charged thereon for state, county, township, or other purpose, exclusive of road taxes; and no person shall be permitted to pay one or more of said taxes, without paying the others in like proportion, except when the collection of some particular tax is legally enjoined." It is my desire to administer the law in conducting the business of the treasurer's office impartially, and it is a matter of very slight moment to me that in former years people who felt like paying property tax and allowing the balance to go by could do so. There may have been innovations in conducting the affairs of this office in years gone by which I may not care to follow, and possibly in avoiding some of them at least, the people will agree with me. I have no desire to be capacious in this, or in any other feature of the business of this office, I assure you, but if there ever was a time in the history of Columbiana county and the Republic of both demand, that the affairs of the treasurer's office be conducted in accordance with law and prudential business rules, surely that time is now. More than this your city officials have been importuning Auditor Harvey ever since he is in office to have this special tax for delinquent sewer, and street improvements placed upon the duplicate and collected. It is therefore through the instrumentality of your own city officials that this tax is upon the duplicate, and in as much as it is there it is clearly my duty to collect it. More than that, the adherence to law in this matter will place in your city treasury $12,615.31 as the result of the collection of this tax, and this is in addition to your regular levy. So much for our adherence to the law. Should we be called upon, under these conditions, to apologize for doing our duty as the law makes it our duty? All of which is respectfully submitted.

Yours truly,

J. B. CAMERON, Treas.

The item to which the treasurer refers contains no reflection upon him and simply called attention to the one fact that East Liverpool was going to have the taxes due it by every law of right and justice.

THE HUSTON RECEPTION.

A Large Audience Assembled at the First M. E. Church.

Promptly at 8 o'clock last evening the doors of the main audience room of the First Methodist Episcopal church were thrown open for the admission of those who desired to do honor and to become acquainted with Reverend J. M. Huston and his wife, the lately wedded couple occupying a position to the left of the right entrance, receiving and shaking hands with the visitors as they passed into the church. The assistants in the ceremony of introduction were Mrs. S. G. Hard, Mrs. Benjamin Harker, Mrs. Ira Hawkins, Mr. George Kaufman, Reverend Benjamin Hodson and Mr. Lawrence Thomas.

At 8:30 the reception proper was over, and the after program was commenced with prayer by Reverend Sears, pastor of the East End Methodist Episcopal church. Then Mrs. Ted Brookes gave a solo, "Consider the Lilies," the choir joining in the chorus. E. K. Macrum demonstrated his musical powers in an organ solo, much to the gratification and delight of his deeply attentive hearers. The next number was a duet by Miss Emma Maple and Mrs. Ada Carlick, rendered in a most charming manner. Mrs. J. C. Thompson then gave, in a superb voice and style, "Love Halted a Little Maid," receiving a hearty encore, responding with a comic selection entitled, "You Shant Play in Our Back Yard," which brought down the house. Mr. Macrum rendered an organ solo in fine touch and time, and the audience compelled him to give a second selection. Duet by Mrs. J. C.

HURT ABOUT THE HEAD

Joseph Schaffer Injured This Morning.

MAY BE A FATAL ACCIDENT

A Resident of This City, Thought to be Dangerously Hurt While at Work Near Calcutta. The Nature of the Injuries Not Yet Known.

A few minutes after noon today Doctor Bailey was notified that his services were needed in the country. Not far from Calcutta, the gentleman was summoned to come at once, as Joseph Schaffer, a well known carpenter of this place, had been seriously injured while at work on the farm of his son-in-law near that town. As the story came he was cutting down a tree when a limb fell striking him on the head. The skull was fractured, and the Calcutta physician was quoted as saying that he believed the injury would prove fatal. Mr. Schaffer is known to a great many people in the city who will hear the startling news with deep regret. It is expected that some thing definite regarding his condition will be known this evening.

L. H. Schaffer, a son, who lives on Fourth street, received word this afternoon that if he wished to see his father alive he must go at once. In company with other members of the family he left at once for the farm.

THE PLAY.

May Smith Robbins, as Little Trixie, appeared at the Grand last night to a fair sized house and pleased the majority of those present. She was fairly well supported and won much applause. Some points were overdrawn to an extent making scenes ludicrous, but the play was, all in all, one of the average sort.

Another Cruelty Case.

On complaint of Humane Agent

Lloyd, this morning Constable Albright arrested John Allison, of Gardendale, on a charge of underfeeding, starving, exposing to inclement weather and abandoning to the dogs, the animal died in front of Joseph Smith's residence, Gardendale, this morning. Allison was locked up for a hearing at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

A Sharp Thief.

A lady who had purchased a coat and three yards of dress goods at another store entered the Star Bargain store on Market street yesterday afternoon to continue her shopping. The bundle was placed on the counter, and when the lady looked for it again it was gone. As no one had seen it disappear, the opinion was that someone had quietly walked away with it.

Trouble at the Risk.

There came near being a couple of fights at the rink last night during the progress of the dance. The difficulty each time was caused by girls who were claimed by different young men for dances. The second attempt at fight occurred in the gallery, but like the first, was promptly quelled by the police. The affairs created considerable excitement.

ONE EXAMPLE.

When the hand of Democracy fell upon the nation it did not mean that the effect of that blow should be effaced in a day, and its intention is being carried out. While it is true that the indomitable courage of the American people is slowly gathering the remains of the industrial depression and throwing them to the winds, there are communities in our own district where poverty and want glare with awful certainty upon the poor unemployed it threatens to claim as victims. Prominent among these stands the condition of hundreds in Youngstown, a place where want was never before known, and where the people have always lived as well as any. A year ago they met the hard times with a brave face, but now, after months of this unjust punishment, without money or fuel, they cry for aid. Youngstown is receiving a bitter lesson, and it is sincerely hoped that the conditions will permit the employment of its poor, or the authorities will search in the direction of humanity and give them that which they most need. As it stands today, the iron center of the Mahoning valley is a suffering example of what the Democratic idea of tariff will produce, not only in Ohio, but in every part of the land.

LABOR THE PAST YEAR

President Gompers Makes His Annual Report.

AGAINST FORCIBLE ARBITRATION.

Designing Persons Advocating It to Destroy Labor Organizations—Secretary Evans Reports a Less Balance in the Treasury—John Burns Makes a Speech.

DENVER, Dec. 11.—President Gompers' annual report, as submitted to the American Federation of Labor convention, contained nearly 8,000 words. He complimented the organization upon being able to preserve its existence during the recent adverse circumstances. Referring to the coal miners' strike, he said 125,000 men were out for eight weeks and yet it was hardly a dearth of coal. Considering the establishment of a minimum rate of wages was a great victory. He defended the action of the Federation in regard to the American Railway union by the assertion that Mr. Debs' proposition submitted to them was a virtual acknowledgment that the strike was a failure. President Cleveland's action at the time he severely condemned.

The honest effort of the government to regulate immigration was acknowledged, but amendments to the laws were suggested the most important of which were speedy trials of immigrants suspected of being under contract, and the sending of agents to foreign countries to inspect prospective immigrants. Hope was expressed that government telegraph and telephone lines will soon be established in connection with the postal department, and unions among government employees were recommended as an aid to the movement.

American seamen were claimed to be the worst treated of those of any civilized nation. The bills in their interest and also for the protection of the cigar makers, he said, would have passed the last session of congress but for the prejudicial effect of the railroad strike.

The establishment of a national labor day was referred to as the only sunbeam labor received from the last session of congress. The convention was asked to endorse the Phillips bill for the creation of an industrial commission. Comes of the bill were detrimental. The efforts of the officers of the federation in behalf of free coinage of silver were mentioned, and a better understanding of the subject by laboring men generally was reported.

The matter of proposed semi-annual conferences with the Knights of Labor was referred to the convention, but a union of the organizations was not recommended. Speaking of the programme submitted by the last convention to the affiliated unions for discussion, Mr. Gompers strongly opposed any movement looking to independent political action by organized labor at present. Results of local attempts in this line were cited to show the disastrous effects. A serious strain upon labor organizations was predicted for the coming winter, but the speaker added:

"Unless every indication is incorrect and cause and effect lose their logical sequence, we are within a year of an industrial revival, which in activity and intensity will far surpass that of any previous period."

The present time was suggested as opportune for the inauguration of a vigorous demand for an eight-hour day and for a law prohibiting contract work on government improvements.

The proposition to establish compulsory arbitration was denounced and the charge made that designing persons were advocating it as a means of destroying labor organization. Many persons, including congressmen, had written to him on the subject, he said, and it was obvious to him that there was danger of some such law being enacted. "The first step," said he, "must be organization; the second, conciliation; the next, possibly arbitration, but compulsory arbitration—never."

The success of the mediation of general officers in number of disputes between workmen and employers, were reported, and the statement made that labor must conquer the right to be heard in all cases. With this right many strikes and lockouts might be averted.

Mr. Gompers asked that more assistance be allowed the president of the Federation in his duties as editor of the official organ of the order.

A cordial greeting was given the English delegates and much benefit was predicted from a closer affiliation with the wage-earners across the water.

Higher dues for the various unions were suggested, as a means of increasing their usefulness and augmenting their strength, and the fact was cited that the only union that has increased its membership in the past year has the highest dues of any in the Federation.

Secretary Chris Evans submitted his report of the finances and numerical strength of the Federation. The receipts from sources including a balance Nov. 1, 1893, of $1,177.64, were stated at $22,403.87. The expenditures were given at $17,303.08, including $3,573.34 donated to the sustenance of striking unions. Five hundred of this was given to the dispute fund. The receipts and expenditures were less than in 1892 and 1893. There is a balance of $5,191.79, which is less than at any time since 1890. The report showed that 167 charters were issued during the year for local and central unions and state federations in 30 days. Several unimportant amendments to the constitution were recommended. Regarding the proposition that the Federation enter politics, the secretary recommended that the organization should work independent of any party. Closer organization and a general breaking away from political parties was recommended.

The treasurer, John B. Lennon, made his annual report. It was practically a resume of the financial items of Secretary Evans' report.

President Gompers then introduced Hon. John Burns, who made a short address. He spoke feelingly of the warm welcome they had received, and gave some words of advice as to the future work in the convention.

Mr. Holmes excused himself from speaking, on account of a heavy cold contracted on his way to the city.

Pellisson's Little Adventure.

Pellisson was frightfully ugly. One day as he was walking down the street a beautiful lady took him by the hand and conducted him into a house close by. Dazzled by the lady's charms, and flattered himself that this adventure could not possibly entail any unpleasant consequences, he had not the strength to offer any resistance. His fair captor introduced him to the master of the house, saying:

"Line for line, exactly like this," whereupon she took her departure. Pellisson, on recovering from his astonishment, demanded an explanation. The master of the house, after sundry apologies, confessed that he was a painter.

"I have undertaken," he added, "to supply the lady with a picture of the 'Temptation in the Wilderness.' We have been debating for a couple of hours as to the mode of representing the tempter, and she ended by saying that she wished me to take you for a model."

—Revue Anecdote.

Happens Once Every 2,500,000 Years.

A remarkable freak in moon phases was noted in the month of February, 1896, a month which has gone into astronomical annals as "the month without a full moon." In that year January and March each had two full moons, but February none. A writer in a leading astronomical journal uses the following language in describing it: "Do you realize what a rare thing in nature it was? It has not happened before since the beginning of the Christian era or probably since the creation of the world! It will not occur again, according to the computations of the astronomer royal of England, for—how long do you think? Not until after 2,500,000 years from 1866!"—St. Louis Republic.

GAY HARRY HAYWARD.

The Man Who Planned Miss Grog's Murder Noisy in Jail.

St. Paul, Dec. 11.—Harry Hayward is still in the Ramsey county jail. He has not yet made any confession and is not likely to. Hayward is conducting himself in a peculiar manner. He has been making considerable noise in the corridor of the jail, singing and laughing. He also joined in the religious exercises conducted in the building and joined heartily in the singing of hymns. He had some conversation with one of the prisoners in jail, after he read the paper containing the confession of Blix. Hayward said to him:

"This whole story of Blix is a fake from top to bottom and is made to save his own neck. I will give something which will paralyze the whole galaxy of detectives and criminals, but I will wait until the proper time comes."

Hayward had met the prisoner he thus addressed in one of the gambling houses in St. Paul, where he dropped $5,000.

HE BUILT CHURCH ORGANS.

But He Also Did Thieving, According to Charges Made.

WHEELING, Dec. 11.—A. M. Frederick, a pipe organ builder, who came here from Jersey City, was arrested and sent to jail, charged with stealing jewelry from J. W. Grubb's store. It is also charged that he had stolen elsewhere in town.

He had done a large amount of work here, and when found was rebuilding the big organ in St. Matthew's Episcopal church. The officers waited until he finished his work and he was then arraigned before a magistrate and committed. He came highly recommended by church and musical people in Pittsburgh, where he last worked.

Indians Can't Lose Lands.

St. Louis, Dec. 11.—In the federal court of appeals the decree of the United States circuit court for Nebraska enjoining Captain William H. Beck, U. S. A., acting Indian agent, from evicting the Flournoy Live Stock and Real Estate company from the lands of the Winnebago and Omaha Indians in Thurston county, Nebraska, has been reversed and remanded with directions to dismiss the complainants' bill at complainants' cost. The government contends that the Indians' tenure did not permit them to lease the land and was upheld.

Bought an Iron Mountain.

MONTECLA, Mex., Dec. 11.—It is given out here that C. P. Huntington has bought the great iron mountain at the city of Durango, and that he will establish extensive iron and steel works there. This mountain is the largest known body of iron in the world. The purchase price is placed at $1,000,000. The Mexican International railroad, one of Huntington's properties, runs through Durango.

Will Contest the Governorship.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11.—The Republicans have finally decided to contest the election of James H. Budd for governor. The supreme court will be asked to grant a writ of mandamus compelling the election commissioners to ignore the contested returns without considering these disputed figures upon which Budd's plurality depends, and in connection with which the Republican state central committee's alleged fraud.

A Train Held Up.

WICHITA, Kan., Dec. 11.—The north-bound Rock Island train was held up near midnight, one mile south of the Red river bridge, near the frontier of the Indian Territory. Two masked men stopped the train, compelled the engineer and fireman to assist them in breaking open the express car, which they entered and rifled. Details are very meagre, and the amount of money stolen cannot be learned at this hour.

They Want Pennsylvania Oil.

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—The government has instructed the Hamburg Chamber of Commerce to inquire into the complaints which have been made as to the inferior quality of recent importations of petroleum by the Standard Oil company. It is charged that the Pennsylvania oil fields are exhausted, and that the oil recently imported came from Indiana and Ohio.

A County Treasurer Short.

SHERBOGAN, Mich., Dec. 11.—William Erratt, the SherboGAN county treasurer, is several thousand dollars in arrears in his accounts. His brother, Henry Erratt, who is deputy treasurer and also treasurer-elect, has been unsuccessful thus far in trying to secure bondsmen. William Erratt, who is a hardware merchant, has made an assignment of his business to one of his bondsmen.

Kneels Admitted to Jail.

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—Robert F. Kneels, the American horseman who is charged with fraudulent practices on the German turf, has been admitted to jail in the amount of 10,000 marks, and sails for the United States from Liverpool this week.

MINING RATES QUOTED.

The Interstate Contract Stiffened by Arbitrators at the South.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 11.—The national board of arbitration, composed of operators and miners in session here, to determine whether the scale for coal miners, adopted at the tail end of the great strike in June, is being generally observed in the Pittsburgh district, adopted the following:

Resolved, That the interstate contract and agreement on mining rates from June 18, 1894, to May 1, 1895, be and the same is, hereby abrogated so far as it relates to the Pittsburgh district, taking effect on and after Monday, Dec. 17.

The board then adjourned, to meet at the call of the chairman. The adoption of the above simply relieves the Pittsburgh operators who signed the interstate agreement from any obligation as to price, and will enable them to meet the competition of those who refused to sign it. In other words, the Pittsburgh operators are now authorized to return home and make the best terms they can with their miners.

It is stated that the miners asked that the operators be released from this contract, and assigned as a reason that it would result in giving them more work. Mr. Brooks stated that the action of the meeting in no way affected the interstate commission, as it was as solid as ever.

Annual K. of P. Election.

RIPLEY, O., Dec. 11.—The annual election for grand officers of the Ohio Knights of Pythias is being held this month. The contests for the various offices are spirited. Only past chancellors are entitled to a vote. Most of the 670 lodges have voted. In addition to grand officers, a supreme representative is to be elected. The candidates for this office are: Past Grand Chancellors L. H. Williams of this place, H. W. Lewis of Dayton, and Phil H. Dorn of Cleveland. Reports from 313 lodges show the following vote: L. H. Williams, 1,915; H. W. Lewis, 1,14; Phil H. Dorn, 512. Past Grand Chancellor Williams has been confined to his room for the past three weeks with a broken leg, which prevented him from making as active a campaign as he might have.

Ricks' Reply to Charges.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 11.—The answer of Judge A. F. Ricks to the accusations that he had failed to account for $1,700 outside of the Birdsell cases has been sent to the special congressional committee which is investigating the charges brought against him by the Central Labor union. Judge Ricks takes up several cases and explains several apparent discrepancies in the books. He goes on to say that in his emolument reports to Washington he was of necessity compelled to rely almost entirely upon figures which were given him by his deputies, and that if he was allowed enough time he could doubtless clear up every discrepancy referred to in the memorial of the Central Labor union.

Fatal Quarrel Among Drunken Men.

IRONTON, O., Dec. 11.—At Sheridan coal works, seven miles above this city, Preston Hackworth, his son, Andrew, and Higby Rosebrock, all miners, were crossing the river from Ashland, Ky., where they had been carousing. They quarreled as to where their boat could land, and upon getting ashore fought. Rosebrock was hit in the head with a stone, then going to his house nearby procured a shotgun, and returning placed the weapon to Andrew Hackworth's abdomen and fired. The charge nearly dismembered Hackworth. Rosebrock escaped, but was captured at Ashland. Hackworth still lives, but will die. The Hackworths belong to Scioto county.

A Mad Dog Scare.

MR. VERNON, O., Dec. 11.—This city is in the throes of a mad dog scare, a large dog, the property of M. G. Davis, having run about the streets, biting every person and dog he could get at. Ten persons were bitten, several of them severely, and cloaks were torn off of two young women. The dog was finally shot, and six other dogs have been killed. The doctors will examine the body of the cause of all the trouble to determine, if possible, if he had genuine hydrophobia. The mayor has issued a proclamation requiring dogs to be shut up under penalty of being shot.

A Conductor's Fearful Death.

STREUBENVILLE, O., Dec. 11.—Conductor A. R. Johnson of Massillon met with a fearful death on the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad, west of Warren, this county. He was a freight conductor and when the eastbound train was approaching a bridge between Warren and Laurelton, he got out on the gangway to look at a hot box on the tank. He forgot about the bridge, which struck him and knocked him to the creek below, where he was found dead when the train was stopped after running a mile.

Want to Indict the Contractors.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 11.—The board of education has adopted a resolution requesting the county prosecuting attorney to lay before the grand jury the facts in reference to charges of dishonest work done on the new school buildings, with the view of indicting the guilty contractors under a special criminal law which applies to public work.

A HANDSOME ESTABLISHMENT.

A Dry Goods House Which Reflects Credit on Our City.

One need not go out of East Liverpool in order to inspect a superb dress and dry goods establishment, fully equal to anything of like character in foreign cities. We take pride in this assertion, because we believe that it is a truthful one, and one naturally feels proud in the knowledge of the fact that his home surroundings equal those of his neighbors.

If you wish to realize just what we mean by the above lines, visit the Diamond and call on Crosser-Gault-Vie Co., where you will be accorded a pleasant welcome by the genial proprietors and courteous clerks, and you will be shown through the entire departments, from basement to third story, if you so desire, no matter whether you wish to purchase or not. Especial preparations have been made for the coming holidays, and the various floors are crowded with beautiful goods of every description incidental to the business.

The lotus and china ware exhibits, the product of our own fair city, in show window and basement, cannot fail in attracting your attention and winning your warm commendation. The basement has special attractions for our lady readers, articles which must be seen to be appreciated.

The main floor is a bower of beauty. Space forbids enumeration of articles contained therein. Suffice it to say that you can here secure any and everything carried by first class houses, at figures which cannot fail to cause you to purchase, if in need of such goods.

If you desire a coat, cloak or wrap, the third story will reveal just what you are in search of. The proprietors stand ready to furnish you anything you may ask for, from the common grade of wraps to the finest garments worn.

In a nutshell, you will find much to please and profit you by calling on the Crosser-Gault-Vie Co., and they extend to you a cordial invitation to visit their business house and inspect the great bargains they are now offering to the public.

No Pardon There.

In commenting upon the work of the board of pardons, the Cincinnati Times-Star cites this case:

"In Columbiana county Samuel Simpson got mad at his wife, and cocking her down, jumped on her breast and danced around on that for a while. He was given four years to cool off. Then everybody turned squarely around and tried to get Samuel out. Among those who tried were Squire Joseph Fawcett, the examining magistrate, a lot of county officials, including both representatives in the legislature. Mrs. Simpson also implored the release of her dear husband, but the board would have none of it.

Prominent in the Maccabees.

Mr. J. S. Burt, deputy great commander for Ohio, Knights of the Maccabees, arrived in the city last night, and will begin at once the work of placing the beneficial features of the order before the public. Knights of the Maccabees.

The state commander writes from Lincoln, Neb., as follows: "After trying other medicines for what seemed to be a very obstinate cough in our two children we tried Dr. King's New Discovery and at the end of two days the cough entirely left them. We will not be without it hereafter, as our experience prove that it cures where all other remedies fail."—Signed F. W. Stevens, state com.—Why not give this give this great medicine a trial, as it is guaranteed and trial bottles are free at T. L. Potts' drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

Taking Water From Wells.

The Bottle Burst.

W. J. Knight.

This evening Mr. W. J. Knight will be at the Grand Opera House to tell the story of the Andrew's raid. Persons who have not read the history of this raid can not realize how very interesting this lecture is, and those that attend it will find that it is a few hours well spent. The balcony has been reserved principally for school children and their attendants at 15 cents, lower floor 25 and 35 cents.

"MY OWN THINGS."

The Present Time Is an Age of Individual Environment.

"Say, mamma, John's got my spoon. Can't I have it? It's mine."
"Oh, just look! Susan's playing tea party with my dessert plate. Make her stop. She'll break it."

"I wish you'd find my pepper box. This isn't mine," proclaims the head of the house. "It's mighty queer these servants can't ever remember my things."

In the library Uncle Jim is twisting and turning and looking daggers at the unconscious caller who is sitting in his special chair. One member of the household is on the wrong side of the table, and the right paper knife is on the left magazine. He always sits the other side for reading. From the drawing room the voice of the elder daughter is heard saying: "Oh, no, I couldn't endure those portraits. The colors do not suit my style, you know. I made a fuss, and mamma took them in her room. I feel color in every nerve."

Such is what the fashion for having individual things has brought upon the household. We have the individual furnishings, the schemes of hangings to bring out the individual beauty of my lady's eyes, the tint of her hair or the gleam of her shoulders, and on the other hand—perish the thought!—to sink the individual in the useful. Have we not the special chair and foot rest, candlestick and cushion?

Small wonder, then, that the practical, prosaic housewife exclaims: "I wish we could go back to those early Christian days when they had all things in common. I believe I could bear it even with towels!"—New York Times.

Curing a Snake Bite.

As is well known, the copperhead is one of the most poisonous snakes, yet J. C. Trout, who was bitten by one three miles from Trimble, Tenn., experienced no serious effects, owing to the remedy he used, which is an uncommon one. He was out hunting, and when a couple of miles from home was bitten on the ankle. He at once started for home, and on the way chewed and swallowed what tobacco he had. When he reached his house, some fresh red pepper root was procured, and with the milky juice which exudes from it a stripe was made around his leg just below the knee. The leg swelled up to the mark and no farther, but it finally became so tightly swollen and painful that the juice was washed off and another mark made with it around his thigh. The swelling gradually climbed up to the new mark, giving him relief, and he recovered without using any other remedy.—Chicago Tribune.

A Delicious French Candy.

To make French nougat boil a pound of granulated sugar and a teaspoonful of water over a sharp fire until it begins to turn yellow, writes Nellie Wiley in The Ladies' Home Journal. Do not stir while boiling. Have ready one-half pound of almonds blanched and dried. Put them in the oven and leave the door open. When they begin to look yellow, add to the candy as it reaches the turning point described above and quickly pour into a well oiled tin or iron pan about one-half an inch thick. Mark with a sharp knife into bars before it cools. By bending the tins between the hands slightly the candy will come out easily.

TELEPATHY TALES.

DAVID CHRISTIE MURRAY ON MIND ACTING UPON MIND.

The Novelist Believes That the Existence of Telepathy Has Been Scientifically Established—His Curious Personal Experiences.

A writer like David Christie Murray, who has taken all life for the field of his art as a novelist and draws upon the whole planet for his illustrations, must have had rich experiences in the domain which the Psychological Investigation society has chosen for its own. But he does not overload his books with material of this kind, nor is his conversation much weighted with the burden of things between heaven and earth that we do not usually dream of. And yet when prompted to do so he can speak on these subjects not only with knowledge, but also with eloquence. He is fitted to do this, first, by his fine mental organization, for he has been psychically sensitive since boyhood, and next by the many psychical experiences which have fallen to his lot during a long, active and adventurous life, lived among many people and many parts of the world. He does not, of course, believe in the aberrations of "occultism," but he is convinced that beneath the ordinary experiences of life, perceptible to the senses, there exist spiritual phenomena which will repay investigation and which science is only now beginning to learn.

One day recently Mr. Murray talked to a Boston Herald man on the special subject of telepathy, and after showing from his own personal experiences how mind may act upon mind at a distance, independently of the ordinary means of intercommunication, he went on to say: "Here is a case in point. My eldest brother, who died in 1865, was at sea as midshipman on board a merchant vessel. He sailed under a drunken captain, who behaved to him with horrible cruelty. He got the seeds of consumption on that voyage. While he was at sea my mother was nursing her uncle, James Withers Marsh, and in the very hour of his death the old man, who had been tenderly attached to my brother, sat up and said aloud: 'Let the lad alone. Have you no bowels?' My mother asked him what he was thinking of, and he cried, 'That captain is ill treating poor Jack horribly.'"

"The first officer, a Mr. Mundy, took command of the ship when Captain Gregory died in delirium tremens and was buried at the Azores. Mundy brought my brother home, and he was told the story of the old man's dying words. He produced his own notebook and showed that on the day of the old man's death he had made an entry, because he intended to indict the captain for his cruelty on their return to a British port. What is most singular is that when he came to work out the difference of latitude he found the entry in his private log and the time of the old man's words coincided to a moment. There are thousands of such instances reported, and it seems to me quite idle to dismiss them as mere coincidences. Coincidence has a very long arm indeed, especially in drama and fiction. But I think it hardly reaches so far as that."

"Not very long ago," Mr. Murray resumed, "I had a very curious personal experience. Two people had been dining with me—one a very dear and intimate personal friend, the other a comparative stranger. When they had left me, I distinctly heard a personal conversation within my own mind. I do not pretend that the words would have been audible to anybody else. That within my mind and recognized the voices of the two men. They discussed my own character and the action I had taken about a certain matter at that time. The comparative stranger was critical and unfriendly, and my old friend fought my cause with great warmth. I questioned him afterward, and he assured me that such a conversation had taken place as he and his convive had driven in the carriage to the club from my house."

The novelist was here asked whether he had met with any cases of the action of a dead on a living mind. He replied, speaking in an impressive and reverent tone of voice: "I am profoundly convinced, though I do not want to be regarded as a madman, that after his death my father assisted me in my literary work. For a year or two I was profoundly conscious of it, and I wrote as if I was absolutely under his eye, and with an assurance of his sympathy and aid that, however conveyed, was absolute."

"I had an allusion to this kind of influence," Mr. Murray continued, "in my book, 'Rainbow Gold.' There is a dialogue there with a great strong man who has committed some dreadful crime and is repenting of it, and the question between the talkers is as to whether there is any knowledge of us on the part of the dead. And old Armstrong, a practical minded Scotchman, remarks that he cannot conceive of the souls of Burns and Shakespeare as spending their time in knocking devil knocks at the tables of noodles like a pair of demented postmen. 'But,' says he, 'you can fairly say the spirit of a mother saying to the master scrapp, 'I have been benaveng pretty well of late, and I would like to go back to Castle Barfield and have a look at the lad I left behind me,' and the master scrapp says, 'Go to the poor creature, go!' And you feel her near you, and you say in the blindness of your mind, 'Nerves.' And you try to chase your poor old mother's soul away from you with a decoction of Peruvian bark."

THEY LIKED NOISE.

Literary Lights Who Found a Stimulus to Work in Turmoil.

All that concerns the men and women who give distinction to their day is of interest to those who admire, criticize and perhaps envy their achievements. A special and legitimate curiosity is felt in reference to the conditions under which success is won. Glances are occasionally given into the methods of eminent toilers, and a wonderful variety is revealed. It is at least plain that no guidebook to great performances—the anxious author can have his choice of several—will determine the point where exactly the best results are to be obtained. One man's help is another's hindrance. Many famous writers, for instance, have only been able to perfect their thoughts in silence and seclusion. But there have also been those who could work in the midst of babel and defy distraction. Jane Austen, whose unpretentious canvases are full of some of the most lifelike portraits in fiction, was never in the habit of seeking solitude to compose. She wrote sitting in the family circle and under perpetual risk of interruption. It was the same with a successful lady novelist happily still living.

Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote her best known story on a plain pine table by the aid of an evening lamp in a tiny wooden house in Maine. About her were gathered children of various ages, conning their lessons or at play and never guessing what a treasure mine of excitement was coming into existence for other young people in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." A large part of the "Roman History" of Dr. Arnold was composed under similar circumstances. Dean Stanley has sketched the Rugby stadium, where Arnold sat at his work, "with no attempt at seclusion, conversation going on around him—his children playing in the room—his frequent guests, whether friends or former pupils, coming in or out at will." Thomas Lovell Beddoes, a poet of luxurious fancy and true genius, though much neglected, also found stimulus to the creative faculty of his muse in working in playful and even noisy company. Such cases recall the story of the learned man of Padua, who assured Montaigne that he actually needed to be hemmed in by uproar before he could proceed to study.—Chambers' Journal.

Cavalry Pistol Practice, 1912.

Here follow the commands for the pistols:

1. Uncape your pistols. 2. Draw forth your pistols. This must be performed with the right hand. The left pistol first and then to mount the muzzle. 3. Order your pistol. Rest your pistol a little in your bridle hand, and then immediately take your pistol near the middle part of it, and place the butt end upon your thigh. 4. Sink or rest your pistol in your bridle hand. 5. Bend your cock or draw up your cock to half bend. 6. Secure or guard your cock. 7. Open your pan. 8. Prime your pan. 9. Shut your pan or order your hammer or steel. 10. Cast about your pistols, which is to be done against your left thigh, with your muzzle upward in your bridle hand. 11. Gage your flasks. 12. Load your pistols with powder. For your more speedy loading of your pistols, there is lately invented a small powder flask, with a suitable charge, but it is not to be denied that your cartridges are very serviceable.

Papa In the Same List.

A gentleman formerly in the service of the United States navy married a Japanese beauty a few years ago and settled down to domestic life in the Land of the Rising Sun.

Only a few months ago an old chum of his, an officer on one of our ships of war, went to call upon him at his home in Nagasaki. While waiting in the room which might correspond to the parlor in this country he heard the prattle of a child in the adjoining apartment. Said the youngster:

"Who is the foreign devil that has come to see papa?"

"Hush," said the nurse. "The gentleman might overhear you. He is a fellow countryman of your father's."

"Well, papa is a foreign devil too."

This incident would seem to show that certain colloquial phrases have survived the feeling of hatred for foreigners which the Japanese abandoned so many years ago.—Washington Star.
